

Linea Awarded Ethical Recruiter Status

NEWS RELEASE

We are pleased to announce that Linea has been accredited an Ethical Recruiter by NHS Employers.

The Ethical Recruiters List is a list of NHS approved recruitment organisations, agencies and collaborations which operate in accordance with the revised Code of Practice.

NHS Employers is the employers' organisation for the NHS in England. They support workforce leaders and represent employers and systems to develop a sustainable workforce. The organisation manages and hosts the Ethical Recruiters List to help health and social care employers with their selection process.

What We Do

Linea connects experienced management professionals with recruitment opportunities, delivering remarkable results for our clients, whilst providing our Associates with incredibly diverse career experiences.

During periods of transformational change, organisations require experienced, hands-on leaders, supported by functional and technical experts, adept at delivering rapid & sustainable improvements in challenging & complex situations. We provide professional management, clinical and technical resources, to enhance organisational capacity and capability in supporting sustainable improvement and transformational change.

Our professionals represent the best and most experienced interim resources internationally, including chief executives, financial directors & consultants, operational excellence specialists, in addition to clinical leaders.

“Accreditation to the Ethical Recruiters List is testament to our teams efforts in building solid and sustainable relationships internationally to support our clients. It is also recognition in how we live our values through our day-to-day activities and interactions.”
